

KATHY GUGLIELMI

ADVOCACY CHAIR

During a routine mammogram in 2003, Kathy was diagnosed with stage II tubulo-lobular breast cancer. About two years later, she reached out to the Breast Cancer Coalition of Rochester where she began attending gentle yoga classes—an activity that she found to be exactly what she needed then and that she still enjoys today. After retiring from her career in financial services in 2013, Kathy began looking for a way to become more involved at the Coalition. Inspired by participation in an Albany advocacy trip, she joined the Coalition's Advocacy Committee. In June 2018, Kathy was named chair of the committee and joined the Board of Directors.
