Welcome to Your Resource Guide

Thank you for exploring this collection of resources. Whether you are looking for specific support, community resources, or health care resources, this guide was designed to provide a solid starting point for you.

A Note on Scope

While we have worked hard to curate a diverse selection of resources and services, please keep in mind that this is not an exhaustive list. The landscape is constantly shifting, and new, valuable resources emerge every day. We view this document as a living foundation rather than a definitive source.

Using This Guide Effectively

Because every individual's situation and needs are unique, we ask that you exercise your own personal judgment when engaging with the entries listed here.

- Verify Information: We strive for accuracy, details like contact info and availability can change without notice.
- Assess Fit: What works for one person may not be the right fit for another. Always consider your specific goals and constraints before committing to a particular path or service.
- Explore Beyond: Use these pages as a springboard. We encourage you to seek out additional perspectives and do your own research.

Our goal is to empower you with the information you need to make informed decisions. We hope you find these resources helpful and empowering.
If you find resources outside of this list that you feel would be helpful for others please share the information with us. We are always learning, too.

Disclaimer: The inclusion of a resource in this guide does not constitute a formal endorsement. Users are responsible for conducting their own due diligence.

The Coalition's Webinar Library is available at bccr.org.

Now, you can access a wide range of educational webinars – anytime, anywhere! Whether you're watching a recent Evening Education Webinar for the first time or revisiting it for more insights, our library is packed with valuable resources on breast and gynecologic cancers.
